Peking, Yesterday.

General Fang Chen-wu's rebel forces desperately attacked the Government lines at Kaoliying, to the north of Peking, on Thursday evening.

The Chinese press reports that they succeeded in breaking through the advanced defences and gaining a footing in the streets, but that later the Government forces counter-attacked and regained the positions.

Further fighting occurred yesterday, when the rebels launched a fresh attack near Tangshan, but, following several hours' fighting, were forced to withdraw across the river.

In the afternoon, however, another rebel force, tried to envelop the Government right wing and the arrival of reinforcements forced the Government troops to withdraw to a new line of defence.

The Chinese press states that further fighting took place last evening.

The injured were taken to St. George's Hospital. The band momentarily stopped, but the ceremony was not interrupted.

The driver of the car was taken to hospital in an unconscious condition. — Reuter.

Chapter VII. —THE TEMPLE.

(By GERALD BURRARD.)

"BUT what have I done Tell me what my crime is and I will endeavour to atone." Geoffrey spoke very humbly: "I am but a poo. pilgrim and have worked no evil.'

Again the Tibetan indulged in a brutal kick.

"Thou fool . . . Thinkest thou that we do not know thee for a spy sent by the accursed Indian Government Do ordinary pilgrims speak Tibetan?"

"I do not understand. Where am I, and what have I done?"

"Thou wilt understand soon enough. Prisoners in the temple of the 'Tiger' always understand and tell us all they know. But thou shalt see."

"I am hungry."

Geoffrey hoped to create a diversion and gain time.

"I will have food brought. Thou wilt need it to keep up thy strength. We like strong men," and he laughed long and cruelly.

He left the lantern in a corner of the cell and went out, barring the door behind him.

Geoffrey was now enabled for the first time to examine his prison. It was a tiny room, but seven foot square and not quite so high. The floor, walls, and roof seemed made of earth, and there was no window. There would have been but little hope of escape even if he had not been bound.

"The temple of the 'Tiger'" the man had said. There could be but one interpretation. He had at last gained the "Tiger's" secret lair! But not quite in the way he had anticipated.

Further, his disguise had not been penetrated. The Tibetan obviously took him to be a native agent sent out by the Indian Government. Then that mocking allusion to a liking for strong men. Geoffrey knew enough of the Mongolian character to realise that it could have but one meaning: torture.

His plight seemed pretty desperate. Then he remembered his pistol for the first time. It was strange how he had not thought of it before, but his mind was only now beginning to clear properly. He rolled over on to his side where the pistol should be, but he could feel no hard lump. It had been taken from him. In turning back he felt something hard on the left side of his chest, and then he remembered the knife which he had taken at Port Said, and which had stood him and Sher Khan in such good stead at Delhi. They had evidently not searched him all over. Hope sprang up.

He heard the clang of the bolts outside his door as they were withdrawn and a Tibetan entered with food: yak's milk and a warm stew. Geoffrey determined not to betray his knowledge of Tibetan, and tried by struggles to show that his hands must be released. The man, however, had had his orders, and he stooped and cut all Geoffrey's bonds before leaving the cell, when he again barred the door outside.

Geoffrey's first act on being left alone once more was to restore the circulation to his limbs, and he banged on the floor with both arms and legs. As the feeling gradually came back he tried to crawl and then walk. In ten minutes he could move about freely once more, and immediately fell to on the steaming food.

He had barely finished when the door was again unbolted and the Tibetan returned accompanied by three others, whom Geoffrey at once recognised as being lamas, or priests. But his surprise at this was as nothing to his astonishment at seeing the device which was worked on each of their long robes, for this device was the ideograph which he recognised instantly as being identical with the one which was carved on the handle of the knife he could feel pressing against his breast.

Unquestionably he had penetrated into the home of the gang.

Chapter VIII

THE COURTYARD

The Tibetan covered Geoffrey with a heavy pistol, and told the lamas to bind him. They at once seized his arms and tied them behind his back, but his legs were left free. At first Geoffrey was surprised at this seeming act of clemency, but the Tibetan's first words soon dispelled any such thoughts.

"Thou shall now come to the great courtyard and there behold how evildoers are punished. But remember that their fate will be one of joyous comfort compared to that which is awaiting thee should thou not tell all that is required of thee."

He gave a signal to his companions, who at once seized Geoffrey on either side and then hurried out of his cell along a narrow passage.

The roof was so low that Geoffrey was compelled to stoop. He noticed other doors similar to the one through which he had passed, and began to count. It was an instinctive act, and he started without knowing why. Five—six—seven. There seemed a great many cells. Eight—nine—ten. That was the last. There was a glimmer of daylight ahead. They turned a corner, and Geoffrey saw the sun shining through the chinks in yet another great door. This was opened by the Tibetan, and Geoffrey stood once more in the light of day.

He found himself on the edge of a large courtyard some fifty yards square. It seemed as if it had been cut out of the solid mountain, for on all sides the buttressed cliffs rose upwards almost sheer. There were numerous doors which opened out from these cliffs on all sides, but extraordinary though the courtyard was, it was the men who thronged it which held Geoffrey's attention.

On three sides the base of the cliffs was lined by armed men, Tibetans and Indians being in about equal proportions, while there were quite a few from the Plains of India. One and all carried rifles—German Mausers, Geoffrey thought—and in their belts were stuck swords, axes, knives, and not a few pistols. They were obviously assembled for some special occasion, as he could tell by the buzz of expectant talk, which ceased momentarily as he was led in, but which resumed its normal tone once more as soon as his presence had been noted. Apparently he was not to be the centre of attraction. But in spite of the murmur of voices the assembly was well disciplined. It did not require a soldier's eye to see that much, and the explanation was not far to seek.

Along the fourth side of the court, and the one opposite to the door through which Geoffrey had entered, were aligned the officers of this strange gathering.

Geoffrey had frequently encountered lamas in his previous travels, and on more than one occasion had witnessed their mysterious devil-dances, when they dressed up as special devils, wearing gigantic and fearsome masks in order to emphasise their supposedly intimate acquaintance with the many devils whom they worshipped and whose deeds they attempted to portray. Tibet is a land of devil-worshippers, and the priests, or lamas, assume the role of go-between for the ordinary inhabitants.

Tailored Note In Autumn Wear

Elaborate Materials And Simple Cut.

IN all daytime modes there is a tailored note, and they adhere to boldness of cut and simplicity of style. Changes lie in the more elaborate materials which are being used for ensembles and suits.

Velvet and velveteen look best "tailored," and the range of ribbed wool fabrics is remarkable. In some metal threads are introduced, and all are distinctly more decorative.

When simplicity is aimed at the tailor reverts to tweeds, covert-coatings, cloths and serges with a slightly masculine air. Even these are more colourful, as are also the new knitted models.

In the very decorative tailored models one sees longer skirts, basques and wide-shouldered coats, with pockets and buttons that take one back again to 1908 and 1909, when the long silk and velvet coats, with trimmings, waistcoats and Louis jabots, were so fashionable.

Petunia Popular For Autumn

Black And White Still Supreme.

GREY IN MANY TONES

OF the colours for the coming season, petunia bids fair to be one of the leaders and so also do all the nasturtium shades. Petunia combined with navy blue was a days of the Paris season and the nasturtium colours were worn extensively with black and seal brown.

Black and white, as usual, reigns supreme in the wardrobe of the smart Frenchwoman. There are any number of black coats worn over white frocks at the races and other fashionable gatherings and quite often the order was reversed, a black frock being worn with a white coat.

Worth sent a maniquin to Bagatelle in a lovely costume consisting of a frock of black and white printed crepe with a wide belt of black velvet and a three-quarter length coat of white velvet and a draped hat of black velvet with a huge bow at the front.

Grey is being heralded as a fashionable winter colour. Mme. Sciaparelli is still featuring her "eelgrey" and Worth is showing a charming new evening gown of smoke-grey tulle trimmed with narrow bias bands of gray organdie.

Hatter's Plush

"HATTER'S PLUSH" and a less long-haired silk felt are responsible for many smart curly-brimmed shapes this autumn. Black is the favourite choice. A small sailor of black hatter's plush is worn straight down, low on the forehead. At the back, to assist the tilt forward, are two large white roses made of ostrich feather fronds, piped with black velvet. Round the tiny brim is a stiffened veil.

The variety in pork-pie shapes is interesting. These look well in dark silk felts with a roleau of contrasting ribbon round the crown.

New Pyjama Mode

SOME pyjama suits are so attractive and in such good style that they might almost be a very new type of tea-gown. The finely accordion-pleated crepe trousers, in palest pink, look like a skirt, and are joined to a corsage consisting of a wide swathe of silver with top worn under a three-quarter coat of decolletage of pink crepe and net, dull silver tissue, shot with pale pink flowers. This smart coat can be worn also over a simple tea-frock of pink chiffon.

Ubiquitous Velvet

VELVET is treated in so many ways that it does not look like itself most of the time.

It is shaved into patterns spotted or striped like humbug sweets, or worked into strips with an effect like the old-fashioned brush braid.

New Elegance In Lingerie

Slender Lines With Less Lace.

THE new negligee are as elegant as evening gowns, with long slender lines prominently featured.

Less lace is used than last year, many of the models being untrimmed.

One white crepe negligee has long sweeping lines, with side drapery and sweeping sleeves made of white embroidered mousseline.

As in negligees, so in the lingerie designed to wear under the new fall frocks is elgance the rule.

Long slender silhouettes, fashioned to fit the figure without a fabrics with sheen make the newest single wringle, delicate hues and models.

Although feminity is the essence of their design, ostentation is taboo. Applications of point d'esprit or tulle are taking the place of lace on a number of designs, since lace now bedecks some of the cheaper lingerie.

INDIVIDUALITY

To maintain exclusiveness many of our more fashionable models are only carried in small quantities.

VIGILANCE BEATS WARRINGTON TO CAUSE UPSET IN "DOUBLE"

HONG KONG WIN BOWLS

MAGNIFICENT DISPLAY BY RAOUL LUZ

Keen Duel Against Richards.

COLONY RINK LUCKY

MAGNIFICENT bowling by R. F. Luz, Colony champion in 1929, was responsible for Hong Kong snatching a rather fortunate win from Shanghai by 21 shots to 15 in the first Lawn Bowls Interport game on the Craigengower green yesterday.

If the Shanghai team can reproduce the form they displayed in the opening stages of the match Adam Holland's rink may be fully extended at the K.C.C. on Tuesday.

The green was in perfect condition, and very fast—just what Shanghai have been waiting for—and the Northerners certainly adapted themselves to the green much quicker than the local players.

Lopes and Main were applauded very early in the game for their drawing shots, although the Shanghai captain was inclined to be a little heavy. Bailey was very shaky at the start, but later made amends with some fine shots. The Shanghai skip, Charlie Richards, was by far the most consistent of the visitors, his play giving the Hong Kong team many anxious moments.

For Hong Kong, "Wally" Mair played a splendid game, few of his woods being wasted, and more often than not being within an inch or so of the desired spot. Contes and Chalmers both started poorly, but it was their combined efforts on the last three ends that enabled Luz to give Hong Kong the victory.

On the whole, man for man, Shanghai were equally as good as Hong Kong, and had they had a little more luck there might have been a very different story to relate.

Shanghai took the lead on the sixth end, and, excepting on the 13th end when Hong Kong drew level again, they held the lead right up to the 18th head.

Hong Kong Take Lead

The last three heads provided the best bowls of the match. Contes drew well with both woods on the 19th and Chalmers improved the position to a three-shot lay. Bailey had bad luck, his wood missing the jack by a fraction of an inch. Richards with a well-judged shot took out one of the opposing woods, but Luz drew well to replace it.

The position was so awkward that the Shanghai skip consulted Bailey and Main, but he could not alter the lay and Hong Kong scored a three to secure the lead at 16-13.

On the next head Contes and Chalmers again drew well, the latter trailing the jack nicely, and Hong Kong again lay three shots. Richards was again unlucky, his shot taking out two of the opposing woods, and touching the jack, but not carrying through. Luz drew two magnificent shots to increase the lay to four.

Shanghai required five shots on the last head to avert defeat, and they made a very fine effort to snatch the game out of the fire. Lopes trailed the jack, and Main, with a great shot, took out Chalmers' wood. Bailey increased the lay to four with two splendid efforts and Shanghai had a great chance. With his first wood, however, Luz drew first shot, for which he was loudly applauded. Richards tried very hard to take out Luz's wood, and came within an inch of doing so in his unsuccessful attempt.

The Shanghai Interport bowlers were guests at a dance given in their honour by the Craigengower Cricket Club last night. A large and representative gathering of local bowlers were present.

Mr. J. Russell, President of the L.B.A., congratulated the Hong-Kong team and remarked that the better team had won. He paid special tribute to Mr. R. F. Luz, the Hong Kong skip, but wished the Shanghai team the very best of luck in their next two matches.

CLUB SURPRISED BY THE NAVY

S. CHINA SECOND ELEVEN DISAPPOINT ARTILLERY

THREE KOWLOON PLAYERS INJURED

THE defeat of the Club premier team by a formidable Navy team provided the only surprise in the Soccer League yesterday. Leading by the odd goal in three at the interval the Club were beaten by 6 goals to 4.

The Second Division programme provided a mild sensation when South China failed to make an appearance against the Artillery. Their action will probably result in the Artillery being awarded both points.

Kowloon were unfortunate to lose three men through injuries in their game against the Chinese Athletic. Oldfield was removed to the Government Civil Hospital with an injured arm, while Videro and G. White were forced to leave the field, leaving the mainlanders with only eight men against the champions.

FIRST DIVISION.

Police Deserve At Least A Point.

HOCQUARD WELL HELD.

In a splendidly fought game the Lincolns defeated the Police on the Railway Ground, Kowloon, by the odd goal in three.

The result was in doubt until the last minute for both teams played the open type of game and the play veered first in one team's favour and then in the other's. A big failing, however, was the shooting, the Lincolns being especially at fault when near goal.

Ridley, the Lincolns inside-left was the outstanding player on the field, but his partner, Hocquard, was not so effective as usual, Gough and Perkins holding him well in check. Cork was the best of a good half-back line and Turner played a splendid game at back.

The Police gave a good all-round display with Perkins, Channing and Gough outstanding and were worthy of a point if only for their splendid efforts in the closing minutes.

After McGuinness had had a good shot saved by McHardy, Baldry gave his side the lead as the result of a corner. The Police had three excellent chances to score, but Pile missed badly.

Crossing over with their slender lead the Lincolns took up the offensive, but were again guilty of wild shooting. At the other end Heath saved well from Pile and Shepherd.

The Lincolns increased the lead through McGuinness who shot through a crowd of players in a goal-mouth scrimmage. The Police efforts were rewarded near the end when Green raced away and sent across a good centre which Shepherd headed past Heath.

Police:—McHardy; Perkins, C. Pile; Gough, Channing, Brittnin; T. Pile, Stevens, Shepherd, Brook and Green.

Lincolns:—Heath; Turner, Roden; Dudley, Cork and Bett; Baldry, Harding, McGuinness, Ridley and Hocquard.

The Artillery played spasmodically, their midfield play was as good as that of Kowloon, but near to goal they failed miserably. They require better forwards if they are to win matches.

Allan was outstanding for the Artillery, whose defence was good. Pardoe was kept fully occupied in holding Elliot while Rogers and Worthington were better in defence than in attack.

Cord, the Kowloon custodian, fully justified the quick reputation he has made. His anticipation was splendid and he excelled at dealing with high shots and centres from the wings. Timberlake played a splendid game showing good understanding with his colleague, Lewis.

Elliot and Lewis were the best of the Kowloon forwards. Elliot is an ideal centre-forward. He is fast and shoots hard, his two goals yesterday being real gems.

Kowloon took the lead when Elliot sent Lewis through to score from close in. After the interval Walker missed badly, but Greenshields levelled the scores with a glorious shot. A long clearance by Hill relieved the Artillery pressure and Timberlake passed to Elliot who beat Allan for possession to score with a fine shot. A minute later he scored again with a splendid effort.

Kowloon:—Cord; Hills and Willis; Whitfield, Jones and Bliss (Captain); O. Davies, Lewis, Elliott, Timberlake and Blake.

Artillery: Comey; Allan, Wroe; Rogers, Pardoe, Worthington; Bairnclough, Smith, Wakerl, Greenshields, and Seal.

Howe Scores Four For Club.

BUT NAVY WIN.

Though leading by the odd goal in three at half time the Club were beaten by 6 goals to 4 by the Navy in the latter's debut game at the Valley.

Although goals were in abundance both defences played well. Fogwell in the Club goal made some wonderful saves and was given no chance of saving the shots that passed him. Outstand

EIGHTEEN BACKERS PAID $234.30

WOODLAND STAG BREAKS POLAR STAR'S RECORD

TWO THREE-FIGURE DIVIDENDS

THE sensational defeat of Warrington, a "cast-iron" certainty in the Jordan Handicap and the subsequent upset in the "double," the three-figure dividends returned on Vigilance (Mr. G. U. da Roza) and Festival Eve (Mr. W. H. S. Davis), and the record-smashing victory of Woodland Stag (Mr. L. G. Frost) provided the features of the first day's racing in the Tenth Extra Meeting at the Valley yesterday.

Though the favourite was beaten the dividend on the "double" amounted to only $234.30. No fewer than 451 backers failed to selected Melody in the first leg and only 18 were on Vigilance.

Mr. Leo Frost, the champion jockey, concluded the day with two wins, a second and a third in six starts to head the jockeys. He is now only two behind Mr. "Johnnie" Heard in the championship. Mr. Frost's win on Woodland Stag was responsible for the shattering of Polar Star's Mile record by 1.1/5 secs.

Mr. "Gus" da Roza, who came up from Canton, had the satisfaction of riding a three-figure dividend winner and a second in four starts, while Mr. "Daffy" Davis broke his "duck" at the Valley with a win which paid $110.10. Mr. Paul Botelho also recorded his first win when he piloted Melody to victory.

Pride of Tsingtao (Mr. Chanson) set the pace in the Nathan Handicap with King's Bounty (Mr. da Roza) and Gold Key (Mr. Harriman) in close attendance. The Tiger (Mr. Frost) was fourth passing the stands. In the straight leading up to the Rock Mayflower was seen coming up well under Mr. Pan and King's Bounty was being challenged by Blue Star (Mr. Liang).

Coming into the home straight Mayflower led with King's Bounty trying to stave off Blue Star.

The way Mr. Liang had nursed his mount over the mile had left the pony beautifully fresh for the last quarter. He came through beautifully to win by four lengths from Cossack's Beauty who overtook the tired Mayflower.

Daylight Eve was fourth, followed by King's Bounty, Gold Key and The Tiger.

Favourite Romps Home

Mr. Paul Botelho fulfilled expectations when he brought Melody home by 1½ lengths to give the majority of backers entry in the second leg of the "double." Paul Jones and Disorderly Conduct took the lead from the start with Melody and Good Sport just behind. White Butterfly was badly left at the gate.

Melody challenged Paul Jones at the Rock and was leading when rounding the corner into the straight, but No Fear looked dangerous, being splendidly ridden by Mr. Choy.

At the stands, however, Melody had the race well in hand and won in a convincing manner. Disorderly Conduct was pushed into third place ahead of Paul Jones, and the other also-rans finished in the following order: Black Velvet, White Butterfly, Good Sport, Flying Boy and Duplex.

H. E. the Governor and Lady Peel arrived shortly after this event.

Woodland Stag's Record

Portia and Rosy Morn set a terrific pace in the Canberra Handicap and the Brish candidate looked as if she would burn up the track in a record-breaking triumph. At the Rock Portia had established a useful advantage over Mr. Gus da Roza's mount, but Woodland Stag, who had got away to a poor start, was coming through from the last position.

Mr. Leo Frost rode a magnificent race over the next furlong and came through like a flash in the backstraight to secure the lead from Portia and beat off the comeback of Rosy Morn. It was glorious riding and the old favourite's win by four lengths in record time proved very popular.

Woodland Stag's time of 1.51.1 bettered Polar Star's record time at the Annual Meeting by 1.1/5 secs.

Hetman's Good Showing

The withdrawal of Gay Crusader and King's Justice left only three starters for the October Handicap with Trentbridge, the Derby winner, a red hot favourite.

Mr. Benny Proulx set a scorching pace on Hetman, but Mr. Soares was not to be drawn into the trap of taking too much out of his mount over the first mile. Mr. "Johnnie" Heard was content to follow Sadko.

The big surprise of the day was provided in the straight when Trentbridge overtook Sadko and challenged Hetman. It was not until the last 100 yards that Mrs. Pearce's favourite came through to win!

Mr. Benny Proulx rode his mount beautifully to turn the tables on Sadko who beat him by eight lengths over a shorter distance at the last Meeting.

Outsider Wins From Favourite

Rumoured to be unfit on Friday morning Vigilance (Mr. da Roza) took the lead in the Jordan Handicap—the second leg of the "double"—and did not crack up after setting a fast pace to beat Warrington, hot favourite, by a short head in a thrilling finish.

King's Parade and King Salman were up with Mr. Li Shiu Pang's pony over the first half mile, but they soon lost all hopes when Mr. Frost sent his pony up in pursuit of Mike at the Rock.

Coming into the straight Warrington looked the winner as Vigilance was not expected to stay the course. The outsider, however, responded well to the whip and just staved off the challenge of the favourite in a thrilling finish.

Mr. Deitz brought National Day into third place ahead of Partnership.

Vigilance paid $111.10 for a win and only $9.70 for a place.

Flying Tourist Just Does It

Mike again disappointed when he was beaten by a head by Flying Tourist in the Kimberley Handicap. Alexandra Hall set the pace, but, after leading into the straight, was nowhere at the finish. Both Flying Tourist and Miko were in good positions behind the leader at the Rock with Wakefield and Bistre close on their heels.

In a thrilling finish Mr. Frost recorded his second win of the afternoon by the narrowest margin. He gave away 17 lb. to Mr. Harriman.

Brechin, who was left at the gate, was ridden into fourth place by Mr. Heard, while Bistre, Mon Talisman, Widnes, and Street Singer followed in that order.

Stickypast Beaten

The Austin Plate provided an upset when The Cavalier showed a fine turn of speed under Mr. Norman Deitz's whip to pip Stickypast (Mr. Proulx) on the post. Mr. Proulx had led all the way round and should have won.

Darien finished behind Per so while the Loafer, Esk, and Jack Sharkey followed in that order.

Mr. Heard's Good Ride

The second three-figure dividend of the afternoon was recorded in the Granville Handicap when Mr. "Daffy" Davis registered his first win at the Valley by beating Helter Skelter (Mr. Heard) by half a length.

Mr. Heard, however, rode the better race. He was left badly at the start and very nearly came off on the corner approaching the football stands when he was bumped rounding the corner. Had he got away to a good start he would have won by a comfortable margin.

Festival Eve paid out $110.10 for a win and $42.50 for a place.

RADIO SURPRISED BY GERMANS

Mamak Champions Concede 3 Goals.

PRACHT'S FINE DISPLAY

Playing with only ten men in a friendly hockey match at Caroline Hill yesterday afternoon against the Radio Sport Club, twice winners of the Mamak Tournament, the German Club were beaten by 5 goals to 3.

The Radio, however, were not at full strength, being without their brilliant centre-half, H. M. Hussain, and their usual goal-keeper, Man Singh.

The brilliant Radio forward line attacked frequently but were held up by Pracht, the German International and Shanghai Interporter, while Ammann was outstanding in goal.

The Radio opened the scoring through Kalwant Singh, and went further ahead shortly afterwards through a spectacular shot by Awtar Singh. The Germans replied before half time through Wesling.

In the second half Kalwant Singh scored the third goal for the Radio after Ammamm had saved a hot shot from G. Singh Soon after

Mr. Lloyd George's "War Memoirs"

Inner History Of First Year

Cabinet And War Office

(By J. B. Firth.)

THE first volume of Mr. Lloyd George's "War Memoirs" was published on September 7, bringing the story of the Great War down to the fall of the curtain on the Serbian Tragedy in the late autumn of 1915.

Mr. Lloyd George says that he had "almost decided" not to write. But when serious illness "released him from the irksome and peculiarly thankless duty of leadership in a political party unhappily poisoned and paralysed by internal dissension among its better-known members," he gave ear to the earnest pleadings of "an old comrade," that he should vindicate the part he played in so many momentous controversies.

Cabinet Inaction.

The "old comrade" is to be congratulated on his powers of persuasion. The story of the war from the British side would be sadly incomplete without these "Memoirs." No one could hope to justify the ways of Mr. Lloyd George to men like Mr. Lloyd George himself. He is his own best interpretor, and he has a proud and magnificent story to tell.

The whole story is necessarily steeped in controversy, and even those who agree in the main with Mr. Lloyd George and accept his broad conclusions may often find themselves challenging the accuracy of this or that impression. Some of his personal estimates, too, seem to be a little lacking in magnanimity.

The author makes startling admissions in his early pages. If, as he says, there was no Cabinet consideration of British foreign policy in the years preceding the war, surely that is a most damning indictment of the Asquith Government.

In what sense, moreover, is it true to say that the war was "not foreseen by people in general?" The actual date of outbreak could not be foretold, and so when war came it took the world by surprise. But that war was coming was clear to all except those who would not see, and some of Mr. Lloyd George's own colleagues deceived the public grossly.

Whitehall Throngs.

Mr. Lloyd George is very critical of Sir Edward Grey. He says that "if he had warned Germany in time of the point at which Britain would declare war—and wage it with her whole strength—the issue would have been different." It could have been uttered, he says, "in sufficient time to leave the German military authorities without any excuse for not changing their dust-laden plans." Was it ever proposed in Cabinet by Mr. Lloyd George or others that such warnings should be given?

Again, we are told that the Conservative Party welcomed the war with enthusiasm. I think it would be much fairer to say that they had long foreseen its imminence and had heartily supported such preparations as the Liberal Government had made. But there was no Conservative "enthusiasm" for war, just as there was certainly no "war fever" during the days when the issues hung in the balance.

The crowds in Whitehall which I remember were not noisy and excited: they were soberly quiet and deeply apprehensive. In a word, they were stunned. Mr. Lloyd George says that the Bank Holiday throngs in Parliament square and before Buckingham Palace were "distinctly a pro-war demonstration."

I thing not. They were not shouting for war. They were demonstrating that they accepted the view that Honour and Safety led them to range themselves at the side of France. They approved the honourable decision just taken by the Government. They had been afraid lest pacifist Liberal Ministers would commit Great Britain to a great betrayal—as they very nearly did. Even after Belgian territory had been invaded, theare were Liberal newspapers which protested that no casus belli was involved in the violation.

War Office Obstruction.

Mr. Lloyd George's supreme achievement in the first year of the war lay in the supply of munitions. The story, as told here, is almost beyond belief. He had to fight furiously and continuously to get his way. Though the Army in Flanders was being shot to pieces for want of guns and high explosives, the War Office would not change routine, and clung desperately to all its old exclusive rights. The war must have been lost if the Ministry of Munitions had not been created, but the War Office continued to regard it "not only with distrust but with profound dislike, veiled behind a mask of contempt."

"It was surely, suspicious, and hostile, and no help the new Ministry tendered or gave softened the animosity of the War Lords towards it. Although Lord Kitchener personally treated me with every courtesy, his entourage were unsympathetic towards the new venture, and later on he was stimulated by the hostility of his own and other Departments to acquiesce in the erection of barriers in my way."

No one else could have succeeded like Mr. Lloyd George in overcoming War Office inertia and red-tape and breaking down Trade Unionism's sullen hostility to "dilution."

From Jan., 1915, on to Mr. Asquith's resignation, Mr. Lloyd George made repeated but unavailing protests against the sole idea of the break through in the West with which the French and British High Commands were equally obsessed. Undeterred by the ghastly carnage, the Generals declared anew, after each failure, that next time they were bound to succeed. Mr. George, on the contrary, was always searching for a place where the enemy might be attacked at their weakest instead of at their strongest point. As early as Jan. 1, 1915, he proposed that the Kitchener Armies should be employed in an attack upon Austria, in conjunction with the Serbians, the Roumanians and the Greeks, and that a second operation should be undertaken against Turkey by landing a force of 100,000 men in Syria to cut off the Turkish armies then advancing on Egypt.

Mr. Churchill's plan of the Dardanelles Expedition, based upon much the same conception, was eventually accepted, but in such a way as fatally to prejudice its chances of success. The Salonika Plan, when at length approved, was ruined in the same deplorable way, for which the French authorities were no less culpable than the British.

Russia's Collapse.

With just indignation Mr. Lloyd George lays firmly upon British and French shoulders a great share of responsibility for the

Russian collapse in 1915, in so far as it was due to lack of munitions and equipment.

He speaks of their "selfish obtuseness" in abandoning their Russian comrades-in-arms to destruction:

"Before Gen. Joffre was convinced by lacerating facts that his 1915 offensive had failed the losses in the Champagne attack were three times those of the Dardanelles. Millions of shells were also wasted—10,000,000 in all, including French and British. Half of the men who fell in these criminal attacks could either have stormed Gallipoli, or had they been sent to Salonika would have enabled Serbia to throw the invading army into the Danube. One-third of the shells would have averted the Russian retreat."

I do not see what convincing or even plausible answer there is to these statements, which justify the repeated memoranda on the strategy of the war which Mr. Lloyd George compiled in the intervals of his strenuous labours at the Ministry of Munitions, and laid before the British Prime Minister and the Cabinet. "I have gone on for months," he wrote on Oct. 31, 1915, "always thinking that every mistake must surely be the last and finding myself constantly surprised by the capacity of our great War Lords for blundering."

"Too Late" Speech.

But the mistakes went on just as before, and the Germans, by drawing Bulgaria in on their side, won through to Constantinople, thereby immensely protracting the duration of the war.

At that most timely moment Mr. Lloyd George delivered his famous "Too Late" speech in the House of Commons which had a twofold effect upon the public mind. In the first place it deepened the fast growing conviction that Mr. Asquith was not a War Minister likely to win the war; and in the second it created a no less assured conviction that Mr. Lloyd George was the man required and the only British statesman of the sort in sight.

But between the conviction and its realisation flowed the dreadful waters of the Somme and another year of stupendous and fruitless losses.

Aviation In Hong Kong.

IN view of the lethargic attitude formerly displayed by local authorities towards aviation it is gratifying to note the official interest manifested recently. Provision is made in this year's Estimates for the development of Kai Tak as a modern airport, the establishment of a Flying School and the revival of the Flying Club, while a subsidy is included for commercial aviation. The plans, while moderately ambitious, necessitate only the modest outlay of $167,238 from the Budget. The principal cause for satisfaction is that realisation of the importance of aviation and the potential importance of Hong Kong as an airport is growing upon the Government. Unfortunately a complicated situation exists regarding establishment of air services owing to the question of granting rights of transit and landing rights here to China, which nation is not a party to the International Air Convention. The Government is naturally cautious without the assurance that reciprocal privileges would be extended by China. Hong Kong, however, is not indispensable, and Canton rivalry may see air routes diverted to Canton, the Colony being excluded as a port of call. Indication of this possibility is seen in the Canton project to institute a service to link up with the French line at Saigon. Doubtless pressure from the Home authorities will prevent Chinese action which would prove detrimental to the Colony but negotiations have so far been protracted and fruitless. No early agreement is in sight as at present China has little to gain from subscribing to the Convention, and the Pan-American Airways interests are unlikely to press the matter. America is also a non-member of the Convention, and probably will not join until the trans-Atlantic route is in operation. Following the recent successful test flights, a Shanghai-Hong Kong-Manila service is being planned, but the issue of landing-rights may prejudice the inclusion of Hong Kong in the route. Imperial Airways are extending their Eastern route to Rangoon, and the England-Australia service is due to commence operation on January 1, 1934. It is understood that the British Company is contemplating a service from Singapore to Hong Kong. All these projects are rather outside the scope of the local administration at this stage, but it is a comforting reflection that preparations are being made in the form of the construction of a modern and fully-equipped airport. The decision to effect improvements at Kai Tak was most commendable, but the rate of progress could be speeded up.

The revival of the Flying Club is a controversial subject but the move would be justified. The success of the Flying Clubs in England (most of which are entirely self-supporting but for a Government subsidy, which is usually given in the form of a grant for each pupil who gains his "A" licence) provides an illustration. The advantages of the Clubs are many, including the stimulation they give to the aviation industry, the education of the community to become "air-minded," and the number of pilots trained. The failure of the original Club has at least provided experience, and it is apparent that a full-time Secretary-Instructor is necessary. If, however, a Flying School is also to be established, a Club may proved superfluous. The intentions of the Government are not clear owing to the ambiguity of the Colonial Secretary's statement in the Budget Speech, but it would appear that the Flying Club is to be conducted in conjunction with the Flying Training School, if not entirely under the auspices of the latter body. The response to a call for membership of the proposed Club would probably be enthusiastic, the only deterrent to most being the expense involved. Unless the Club were assured of a large subsidy the instruction fees might be sufficiently high to prejudice the Club's prospects in a period of economic adversity. The time would seem appropriate for the convening of a meeting of prospective members of the Flying Club. The provision for training facilities for a certain number of Volunteers is justified on the same grounds as the formation of a Naval Volunteer Reserve, although it must be borne in mind that even a skilled civilian pilot would require from three to six months' military training to attain the efficiency of junior R.A.F. pilots. Perhaps the Government contemplates the eventual establishment of an Auxiliary Air Force on similar lines to the Volunteer units at Home. Presumably, in the selection of Volunteers for training preference would be given to those applicants who were either permanent residents or were to be stationed in the Colony for some time.

PORTUGUESE FILMS

[To The Editor "Sunday Herald."]

Sir,

In the last issue of your weekly paper, it was stated that production of sound as well as silent motion pictures will be begun in both Spain and Portugal in the near future.

May I, in this connection, mention the fact that a talking singing and dancing picture, namely, "A Cancao de Lisboa", has already been completed and presented by the Studios of Lumiar, Portugal, and that the work of several other films is now being carried out. Therefore, production of sound pictures has already been begun in Portugal.

As it might be of interest, may I state that the studios alluded to, were the first to be built in the Peninsula and are, from the point of view of installations, (they are all the most up-to-date) superior to other studios in Europe, according to German technicians.

Sir,

In connection with the appeal for the Blind Girl's Picnic which you kindly published on Sept. 23. I wish to say that I have received the sum of $69 and the offer of 8 cars.

Such a generous response is most gratifying, but as there are 55 girls, more donations and cars are still needed.

The picnic is on Saturday Oct. 14, at 2.45 p.m.

Offers of cars and donations may be sent to Mrs. F. E. E. Booker, c/o St. John's Cathedral.

CANTONESE LESSONS BY RADIO.

[To The Editor "Sunday Herald."]

Sir:—

Several years ago lessons in Cantonese were broadcasted over the radio by the Rev. Mr. H. R. Wells, which were deeply appreciated by myself and many others.

I am writing to express the hope, through your valued column, that the radio committee may be prevailed upon to arrange for Cantonese lessons to be given by Dr. Wells over the radio. Not merely young foreign business men in the Colony but many others would be benefited as well as amused by the characteristic witty manner of Dr. Wells in making the very great difficult Chinese language as simple for the learner as A.B.C.

Covent Garden's Future

The present position of the negotiations concerning the future of Covent Garden Opera House, is this:

Covent Garden Estates, Ltd., who own the place, are willing to grant own the place, are willing to grant a further lease for operatic purposes, but not at the previous rental. A sum of £40,000 must be spent on vitally necessary improvements, and this, it is understood, will be forthcoming.

Meanwhile Mr. Percy Eales, who has been connected with the place for 40 years and was manager for the pre-war syndicate run by the Mr. Harry Higgins and the late Lady Ripon, has been installed to watch the owners' interests

Operatic Chances

The existing opera syndicate, whose lease expired on July 31, is not yet dead, for its salaried officials are at the theatre every day.

Mr. Charles Moor, who succeeded the late Colonel Eustace Blois, has just been in London to talk over a season next summer.

Views are expressed that the season is virtually a certainty, whether run by the present syndicate or by a new body in which Sir Thomas Beecham and Mr. Geoffrey Toye may figure.

It is, however, necessary to engage singers of international fame many months, or even a year, ahead. In the present circumstances no definite negotiations can be opened with them.

The Government Vacancy.

When the Lord-Advocate, Mr Craigie Aitchison, leaves the Government in October for the Scottish Bench he will not be merely an ordinary member of the Court of Session—or, to give a Scottish judgeship its more sonorous title, a Senator of the College of Justice.

His appointment will be as Lord Justice Clerk and President of the Second Division of the Inner House, or Court of Appeal. In precedence he will rank second only to Lord President Clyde.

Like Lord Alness, whom he will succeed, Mr. Aitchison is a son of the manse.

Scottish "Marshall Hall."

Mr. Aitchison made his name as a criminal lawyer in a series of murder charge defences, and was acclaimed the Scottish Marshall Hall.

His forensic style, and even his physical appearance, supported the title.

Like Marshall Hall, he was much happier in defence than in prosecution. Again like Marshall Hall, he has never done himself full justice in the House of Commons. And, of course, since he became National Labour, he has been regarded as "fair game" by his former colleagues, and in particular the Clydesiders.

It is no secret that for many months he has been anxious to leave politics, even at such an early age as 51.

Maxton and the Microphone.

The Independent Labour Party is angry because its Parliamentary leader, Mr. Maxton, has not been included in the new series of political broadcasts to begin in October. The question of his exclusion is to be raised in the Commons when Parliament reassembles.

The series provides five opportunities for representatives of Government parties to broadcast, and four, for the Opposition, including one for the Samuelites.

The I.L.P. argues that as "the second party in opposition," and a separate organisation, it is entitled to a share in the wireless propaganda. Mr. Maxton's following in the Commons consists solely of Mr. Buchanan and Mr. McGovern, but this, it is argued, does not truly indicate the party's strength in the country.

Since politicians broadcasting in this series are not required to submit manuscripts in advance, the exclusion of Mr. Maxton will be a loss to listeners who like entertainment as well as information.

B.B.C. Changes.

The B. B. C. have made a wise choice in Mr. Aylmer Budsat, the conductor, as second-in-command to Mr. Adrian Boult. He is short, slim, and full of enthusiasm, widely experienced and well liked by orchestral players.

Mr. Buesst is a perfect Wagnerite. He thinks "Die Meistersinger," which he conducts immaculately, the greatest opera ever written.

His hobby is heraldry and all that belongs to the study of genealogy.

Sir Philip Magnus.

Sir Philip Magnus, who died on August 29 at the age of 90, was easily the Grand Old Man of London University, from the Senate of which he retired only two years ago, and of University College School, of which he was a pupil in the 'fifties.

He had two dominating interests; education and politics. Starting as a physicist, he taught for thirty years at the City and Guilds London Institute before joining the staff of London University itself.

From 1916 to 1922 he represented the University in Parliament, and after his retirement continued as president of its Conservative Association. As a speaker he was prolix but meticulous, and he intervened chiefly in debates on educational and medical subjects.

The death last year of his son Laurie, editor of the "Dictionary of European Literature," was a severe blow, and after it he relinquished most of his public activities. He was engaged, however, on a history of London University, a considerable part of which must already be complete

Delaying the Fight in Fulham.

The by-election in East Fulham is not likely to take place until towards the end of October. This delay, which is expected to commend itself to all the parties, will enable the poll to be taken on the new register which comes into force on October 15.

If the poll took place before then it would be on the old register, which contains the names of electors who acquired three months' residential qualification up to June 1 of last year.

East Fulham is a dormitory division, 70 per cent. residential, and many changes have occurred since the present register was compiled. New residents who have lived in the division for three months prior to June 1 this year will be able to vote on the new register.

As the late member was a Conservative, the initiative in moving for the writ will rest with the Conservative Whips.

East Fulham Candidates.

Sir Martin Archer-shee, whose name is before the East Fulham Conservative Association in connection with the by-election in that division, has taken the bold step of announcing that, if he is not adopted as candidate, he will stand as an independent Conservative in opposition to the Government's India policy.

Now the East Fulham Association was one of the first to pass a resolution condemning that policy, and it might conceivably outmanoeuvre Sir Martin by adopting a candidate whose views on India are the same as his.

* * *

Sir Martin's Career.

If he does stand, we shall see a lively election.

Sir Martin may not have been a Parliamentary figure of the first rank, but he is a good man on the platform and an able and astute if somewhat fiery campaigner.

He is, at any rate, no refugee from another party, but a Diehard to the core, whose Conservative principles are beyond suspicion.

As an example of his determination as a fighter, it may be mentioned that he has twice been concerned in Income Tax cases which have gone to the House of Lords. And it may not be irrelevant to add that he once came o blows with Mr. Pemberton Billing in Palace Yard.

He has also the unusual distinction of having begun his career as a midshipman, continued it as a cavalryman, and ended up in the Army as an infantryman.

WHERE THE MOUNTAINS CAME FROM

"Drifting Continents" May Be Cause.

TOKYO GEOLOGIST'S VIEW

Washington.

Three mighty forces that have built all the world's mountains—the sliding of vast sections of the earth's crust into the sea, the "drifting" of continents and upheavals in ancient seas—were the subject of a paper read to the international Geological Congress here by Dr. T. Tokuda of Tokyo.

The Rockies and Appalachian ranges of North America and the Andes chain of South America had been folded into their present positions by the "drifting" of these continents westward across the face of the earth, Dr. Tokuda said.

Under this theory, he added, North and South America were like two great rafts, gradually but imperceptibly moving west and the force that moved them may be related to the earth's rotation, which was in the opposite direction, eastward.

"The mountains were folded up because the great mass of the Pacific Ocean has resisted the westward drift of the continents," he continued. "The rocks were crumpled into mountains between the two great forces, one shoving them westward, the other resisting the advance. It was like ice floating on a river being jammed up against the solid piers of a bridge.

"Some scientists believe all the continents have slowly drifted apart after being originally parts of perhaps two great land masses. Others dispute the idea that there is any drift.

A giant landslide into the Pacific Ocean, continuing over a vast length of time, was what built up the mountain ranges in the Eastern part of Asia. A vast section of the earth's crust at some time was torn looose from the continent and has been sliding down toward the centre of the Pacific.

"The force of this great landslide has pushed up mountain ranges in that region, including what are now the islands of the East Indies off the Asiatic Coast. It may explain the earthquakes of Japan."—Reuter.

FEARS FOR FAMOUS TURKISH MOSQUE

St. Sophia's In Danger Of Collapse.

DATES FROM YEAR 532

Istanbul.

Fears that part of the famous mosque of St. Sophia, which was a Christian church until the Turks took Constantinople in 1453, may be in danger of collapse are expressed by Greek and French archaeologists.

It is stated that both the east dome and the eastern columns are in a bad state of disrepair.

Professor Whittemore, of the Boston Byzantine Institute, who is at present engaged in cleaning the mosaics of St. Sophia, states that a number of packing cases stored in the mosque also constitute a danger to the building.

These packing cases, which contain old documents, are shortly to be transferred to another place. At the same time an investigation will probably be carried out regarding the reported leakage of rain water through the dome into certain parts of the mosque.

During recent years the Turkish government has undertaken certain renovating and restoration schemes, but it is thought that they have not been far-reaching enough and that the mosque is in need of a thorough overhaul.

The foundation stone of St. Sophia, which is a perfect specimen of Byantine craftsmanship, was laid in 532 by the Emperor Justinian, and the church was completed within six years.—Reuter.

ENGLISH SCOUTS ARRESTED.

PUBLICLY CARRYING KNIVES IN AMSTERDAM

Amsterdam.

Three English boy scouts walking quietly through the streets of Amsterdam had an unexpected adventure. The boys, who were wearing the ordinary scouts uniform, were arrested by a policemen for publicly carrying knives contrary to Dutch law.

They were taken to the police station and had to surrender their knives to the police authorities before being liberated.

No further proceedings are being taken against them.—Reuter.

MASEFIELD'S TRIBUTES TO SIR R. ROSS

36th Anniversary Of "Mosquito Day."

COMMEMORATION SERVICE

London.

The Poet Laureate, Mr. John Masefield, paid a tribute recently to the work of Sir Ronald Ross, at a commemorative service at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, the occasion being the thirty-sixth anniversary of the discovery by Sir Ronald of the malaria parasite.

Sir Ronald always observed this day as "Mosquito Day" and Mr. Masefield expressed the hope that it always would be so observed.

He said that Sir Ronald was a very forcible, vigorous man, with a pugnacious resolute mind, and with a friendly yet fierce intelligence. His family had many links with India, and it was India which gave him his opportunity and set him his problem.

"There he consecrated himself," said Mr. Masefield, "to his pursuit of science, which is the knowledge of the cause of things. It was there that he met his first adversary —stupidity in office.

"Through him we now live in a healthier world free from some of the nightmares which once oppressed it."

Mr. Masefield spoke of the horrors which surrounded those who dwelt in countries where yellow fever and malaria were rife, and said that malaria was once believed to be caused by bad air. Ross discovered that the cause was the anophiline mosquito. Before that discovery there were many knaves and quacks who visited fever-stricken districts with their nostrums.

Sir Ronald, in the later years of his life, was often filled with indignation, Mr. Masefield said, at the prejudice with which his discovery was met, and he was disappointed that the results of his labours were not made use of earlier.

In addition to his eminence as a scientist Sir Ronald also made a name as a poet, was a clever mathematician, an accomplished painter and a skilled muscian. He had in addition to these qualities a singular simplicity.

After Mr. Masefield's address his daughter, Miss Masefield, and Mrs. Dale Roberts read poems by Sir Ronald Ross, including the "Hymn of Praise" which he wrote soon after making his great discovery. The congregation also sang Sir Ronald's hymn "Before Thy Feet I Fall."—Reuter.

Workmen Put Out Flames.

ANOTHER BLAZE AT KOWLOON

Fire broke out in the compound of the Hong Kong Rope Manufacturing Company's factory at Belchu's Street, Kennedy Town, on Friday night at about 10.45 p.m. The Fire Brigade sent two engines to the scene but on arrival found that the fire had been got in hand by the workmen at the factory with the aid of the fire hydrant which was installed in the factory.

A quantity of rope making material was damaged to the extent of $20.

Matshed Burnt At Kowloon.

A matshed shelter on the rifle range at Whitfield Barracks, near Canton Road, Kowloon, caught fire shortly before midnight on Friday. Fire appliances from Kowloon and Mongkok Stations were rushed to the scene and, with the assistance of the military, soon extinguished the blaze.

It is suspected that the fire was caused by some coolies who used the shelter to sleep.

PICKPOCKET CAUGHT IN CITY STREET

Unlicensed Hawker Robs Unemployed Man.

Leung Fuk, an unlicensed hawker, convicted by Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning on a charge of stealing $35 in Hong Kong notes from Wu Chukong, an unemployed man, was sentenced to six months' hard labour, and ordered to pay $35 to the complainant, in default one month's hard labour, while the sum of $1.35 found on the accused was handed to the complainant.

It was stated that, while walking in Des Voeux Road, complainant felt someone tryig his pocket, which contained two packets of notes, and, turning round, saw the accused, who immediately bolted. Complainant then found that one of the packets of notes was missing and gave chase. While being followed the accused flung away the packet, which had not been recovered.

Christ-The Symbol Of Strength

Impressive Physique Of Born Leader

PAINTERS WHO MISLED THE WORLD

(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

One of the outstanding features of modern life, especially in Europe, has been the increasing love of mankind for the open-air life. It has expressed itself in what is known as hiking. Instead of men and women spending their spare time cooped up in the atmosphere of our great cities, they now spend all they can in the country, tramping from place to place.

We are trying, in this series of articles, to find something in the life and character of Jesus Christ, which would draw men to Him, as He promised. Last week we thought of His humility. To-day, let us think of Him as The Outdoor Man.

One of the most familiar stories of His life, is that in which He cleansed the Temple of the money changers. In pictures, He is shown as doing it, with a halo around His Head, as if that was the explanation of his triumph. The truth is much simpler and more unpressive. As His right arm rose and fell it showed muscles as hard as iron.

There are those whom it will seem almost irreverent to suggest that He was physically strong. They think of Him as a Voice, a Presence, a Spirit. They forget what those 30 years of hard toil had done to his physique. In those days the man who took the contract for a house assumed responsibility for digging the foundations. In the after years when they heard Him upon a rock they knew that He knew what he was talking about.

A Leader of Men

The narrative tells us distinctly that He waxed strong. As He grew in stature He developed a capacity for directing men, and the day came when He was left in sole charge of the carpenter's shop.

What sort of man did He look when He appeared at last on the banks of the Jordan? Unfortunately the Gospels supply no satisfactory answer. But if we read between the lines we can be pretty sure that all the painters have misled us. They have shown us a frail man, under-muscled with a soft face, a benign yet baffled look. This is not the Man at whose word the disciples left their jobs to enlist in an unknown cause.

And for proof of that assertion, think of only four aspects of His experience—the health that flowed from Him to create health in others; the appeal of His personality to women—weakness does not appeal to them; His life time of outdoor living, and the steel-like hardness of His nerves.

That day when He healed the sick man in Capernaum, "Rises," He said, "take up your bed and walk." Walk! do you suppose for one minute that a weakling, uttering that word would have produced any result? It was as though health poured out of that strong body into the weak one like current from a dynamo. And the man who for so long had surrendered to despair, rose and walked.

Another day as He was walking in the crowd, a woman touched His garment and by that single touch was cured. It was a miracle, but He was always reticent about miracles. He was often reluctant to perform them, and frequently insisted that the individual should tell no man.

On one occasion His miraculous power failed to function. It was in His own town of Nazareth. And it failed for a very good reason. They did not believe in Him. Whatever the explanation of His miraculous power may be, it is clear that something big was required of the recipient as well as the giver.—Without a belief in health on the part of the sick man no health was forthcoming. And no man could have inspired that belief unless his own health and strength were so perfect, as to make the impossible seem easy.

Worshipped by Women

Men followed Him, and great leaders have never been weaklings. But women worshipped Him. This is significant. The names of women form a large proportion of His closest friends. They were women from widely varying stations in life, headed by His mother. Perhaps she never quite appreciated His genius, but she was true to the end. There were Mary and Martha, two gentle ladies who lived outside Jerusalem. There was Joana, the wife of one of Herod's stewards, and many others of the type we know as "good women."

Women are not drawn by weakness. The sallow lipped, spiritual type of man may awaken the maternal instinct, stirring an emotion which is half-regard, half-pity. But since the world began no power has fastened the affection of women like manliness. The men who have been "women's men," in the finest sense, have been the vital figures of history.

The other sort of women came into contact with Him too—women of less fortunate experience—whose illusions with regard to men were gone. One day as He taught in the Temple one was brought before Him having been taken in adultery. She listened while their unclean lips played with the story of her shame, —she who knew men and despised them all,—they were all alike in her philosophy,—what would this one have to say?

"He that is without sin amongst you, let him cast the first stone," and He began to write upon the ground. From the moment they had broken in upon Him, He was complete master of the situation. They were men not easily abashed, but they slunk out of His presence without a word. And she who knew men, better than men know each other, responded to His power and spoke to Him reverently as "Lord."

All His days were spent in the open air: this is the third outstanding testimony to His strength. On the Sabbath He was in the synagogue, because that was where the people were gathered; but by far the greater part of His teaching was done on the shores of the lake, or up in the hills. He walked constantly from village to village. Even at night He slept in the open, when He could—turning His back on the hot walls of the city. He was the type of outdoor man whom our modern thought most admires; and the vigorous activities of his days gave His nerves the strength of steel.

One night as they were crossing the lake, the storm broke. His disciples, in panic awakened Him. He rose without the slightest suggestion of alarm, issued a few quiet orders, and all was well. Miracle or not,—it was one of the finest examples of self-control. To be awakened suddenly out of sound sleep, and to exhibit instant mastery, shows a type of nerve control that is rare indeed.

Putting aside, for the moment, all thought of His Divinity, surely here is a Man Whose Character and personality should appeal to men of every age and every colour, under Whose banner they would be proud to march towards the betterment of humanity.

FOOT OF A SAINT STOLEN.

Sacrilege Committed For Gilt Copper.

Paris.

The 1,400 year-old mummified foot of St. Victor, has been stolen from the Church of Saint Nicholas-du-Chardonnet.

Simultaneously a replica of the Crown of Thorns has vanished, in which there are eight little reliquaries, each said to contain a fragment of the true Crown.

The thefts are probably due to the gilt copper of which the replica crown was made, and in which the foot was set. This may have been mistaken for gold by the thieves.—Reuter.

LILIAN HARVEY'S CAREER

An English Girl

BLESSED VICTIM OF THE GREAT WAR

WHATEVER she does on the screen, whether driving a racing-car at madcap speed, or diving from dizzy heights into sunny water below, there is an innate grace, an impish comedy about the gayly infectious performance.

Lillian Harvey first won American notice, writes Marguerite Tazelaar in New York, in "Congress Dances," the English version of Herr Erich Pommer's amusing sketch about the pompous and historical Congress of Vienna. And she is now said to be among the first Continential film stars in popularity and appeal. While associated with the Ufa productions of Germany, and speaking the language with the ease and fluency of a native, Miss Harvey is actually an English girl, born in Hornsey, outside London. When she was quite small her family went to Germany for a visit. It was just prior to the war, and at its outbreak they found themselves detained in Berlin for an indefinite period. Lillian, therefore, was sent to school—the Lyceum of Schoenberg—where she was taught both German and French. Somewhat later she enrolled in Mary Zimmerman's dancing school, which led to a subsequent engagement in Emil Schwarz's Revue in Vienna. It was during a rehearsal with the troupe that she attracted the attention of Robert Land, a motion-picture director, who signed her up for a film he was then making called "The Curse"

Adept at Making Foreign Film Versions

Following this production she was engaged by Richard Eichberg to do a series of silent films. "The Wild Lola" was made later and she went to London for its premiere, where she was acclaimed as the prodigal daughter come home to fame and fortune. She remained in England long enough to star in "One Night in London," a film, after which she signed a Ufa contract and returned to Berlin once more.

During the last two years she has been working without let-up at the Ufa studios. Fourteen day's vacation has been her lot in all this time, and they were divided into small holiday bits. Among the pictures completed were "A Love Waltz," "The Virtuous Suzanne," "Congress Dances" and "The Blonde Dream." Most of them were made in three versions by Miss Harvey; that is, in German, French and English.

The Fox officials report that she has made the most beautiful picture of her career—"My Lips Betray" in which John Boles plays opposite her. El Brendel has the comedy role and handles it delightfully.

The picture is a nonsensical romance between a King and a waitress. It is full of sparkling humour, bright catchy songs, and with Lillian Harvey's dancing and John Boles magnificent voice, there is nothing left to be desired.

"My Lips Betray" will be shown in London for the regular release during the Christmas holidays according to a cablegram received from Managing Director Hutchinson. It was shown at a preview at the Tivoli London recently and two weeks ago at the new Grand Theatre Shanghai. The King's will be the third theatre in the world to screen the picture, as it will not be released in the United States until the 10th of November. Just one month after it is shown in Hong Kong.

IT would normally be necessary to get down a special brand of superlatives to describe the whole programme. Miss Lilian Harvey upsets all plans of that kind. When she is pervading the air, no-one can possibly avoid being "of good behaviour," as the police court would say. She is just a bundle of delicious spontaneity, getting into scrapes with an attractive gaucherie which somehow gets her out of them. She sings, dances and acts simply because she is thoroughly enjoying herself and wants you to share the fun. Smitten with this sort of notion the photographers rose to the top of their form. Mr. John Boles acted in true Puritanian fashion with a dignity tempered by a real sense of humour. Mr. El Brendel had little to do but did it well. Miss Irene Browne played the modern Queen Mother with a tang and a masterfulness which her clever characterisation never overstrained. On the top of all Miss Harvey's scientillating support (not even excepting Mr. Bing, once more a harassed impresario, or Mr. Henry Stephenson, polished and cynical) is Miss Maude Eburne as the hard-hearted landlady, turned into a melting mountain of motherly majesty when she discovers that rumour has linked Lili with royalty, albeit scandalously and untruthfully. Miss Eburne is a positive joy. Still the picture remains Miss Harvey's very own. Indeed the whole show is hers if rightly assessed on the basis of the impressions left after basking in her radiant magic for the duration of the film.—North China Daily News.

Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Co. Report:—There was decisively negative short session, which showed passive outside interest. Trading remains largely professional, with relatively thin markets on both sides. The list acts as though awaiting news, and we feel that news of developments in the near future is more likely to be favourable than otherwise. One thing appears to stand out and that is that so-called direct currency inflation is shelved for the present. Wheat: Wholesale liquidation in all grains. Support was largely active hedging sales and prebureau liquidation depressed prices. The Trade bought on the scale-down. The market is in an uncertain mood. Silver: Operators are inclined to await further developments in Washington. Trade news is devoid of fresh features. Prices eased in sympathy with other markets.

Business Done:—1,460,000 shares.

ing in a very well balanced team Fairless and Perkins played football as it should be played. S. Strange played well in defence, and, although his passing was slightly erratic under the heavy barrage of the Navy forwards, he was as safe as usual.

Howe, the Club centre, did not lose one opportunity to give the Navy defence an anxious time on his own initiative. He secured all four goals for the Club with first-time efforts.

Howe opened the scoring on behalf of the Club after a run through on his own, and within five minutes he had notched a second with the Navy halves and backs once more trailing after him. It was not until towards the end of the first half that the Navy scored, Smith sending in a "daisy-cutter."

On the resumption, the Navy improved considerably and Langmead equallised with a header when Fogwell had been drawn from his goal. They went ahead shortly after when Clarke netted from a beautiful pass by Fairless. Howe equalised for the Club with a header, but the Navy regained their lead when Langmead netted his second. Smith and Clarke settled all doubts when they beat Fogwell with first-time efforts shortly after.

Club:—Fogwell; Hynes and S Strange; (Captain) Skinner, C. Wright and A. Duncan, F. Fowler, Dominy, Howe, E. Strange and Bickford.

Navy: Leech; Thompson, James Perkins, Allport, McGuire; Fairless, Smith Langmead, Burnage, Clarke.

St. Joseph's Outclass The Recreio.

A. V. GOSANO AT RACK.

Mainly through the brilliant work of A. V. Gosano, St. Joseph's defeated the Recreio by 4 goals to 2 on the Caroline Hill ground.

Though trying hard, the Recreio forwards were completely outclassed. A. V. Gosano, who played in the right-back position for the Saints, stopped and scattered nearly every dangerous raid, clearing and passing without fault to give his forwards many excellent openings of which they made good use.

Leonard opened the scoring for the Saints after Rocha had paved the way. Leonard was again rewarded for his persistence when, snapping up another pass from Rocha, he netted with a first-timer with McGrann unsighted. Souza, however, reduced the lead through a misunderstanding on the part of the Saint's defence, but Ward regained the two-goal margin for the Saints before the interval.

Rocha made the most of an easy opening when he sent the Saints further ahead. Recreio hopes received a further set-back when they failed to convert a penalty, but shortly after Gomes accidentally headed the ball into his own gial.

St. Joseph's: Marques; Gomes, A V. Gosano; C. Fernandes, Costa, Fernandes; Lawrence, Ward Leonard Rocha, Sabhan.

Recreio: McGrann; Silva-Netto, Gutterres; Castilho, Maher, Figueriedo; Ribeiro, Santos, Souzae, Delgado, L. Castilho.

WHY SUFFER FROM

Influenza	Colds	Headaches	Neuralgia
Rheumatism	Nerve Pains	Sleeplessness	Lumbago
Toothache	Earache	Irritability	etc. etc.

THERE is no long waiting for results. A few 'ASPRO' Tablets and relief practically follows immediately. Furthermore, with 'ASPRO' there are no injurious after-effects, because 'ASPRO' contains no dangerous dopes or drugs and it does not harm the heart. Cheap drugs and medicines are always dangerous—they cost far more in the long run—they intensify attacks—rob you of vitality through weakening the system—and lower your power of resistance.

Remember! 'ASPRO' is guaranteed to contain no dangerous drugs. It is concentrated pure healing service in Tablet form. You can obtain 'ASPRO' from any chemist or store in Hong Kong. 'ASPRO' has been proved and demonstrated by thousands to be the greatest pain reliever in the world. Furthermore, it restores you to good health by removing the cause of numerous complaints because 'ASPRO,' after ingestion in the system, is anti-pyretic — anti-periodic — anti-fermentative — anti-septic and a solvent of Uric Acid. Every house which has a packet of 'ASPRO' in it is provided against most complaints and sudden pain attacks.

'ASPRO'

Does Not Harm the Heart

The PURITY of 'ASPRO'

The purity of "ASPRO" conforms to the standard laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia—the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. With 'ASPRO' there is no free Salicylic Acid, therefore, it does not harm the Heart, or have any injurious after-effects, such as palpitation, nausea, digestive or other troubles. Safeguard your health and heart by always insisting on 'ASPRO'.

5 MINUTES FOR RELIEF WITH 'ASPRO'

There is nothing indefinite about 'ASPRO.' Its service is QUICK—safe, effective and definite. It gives you relief in 5 to 10 minutes and then goes on to dispel or dissolve the cause of the pain, allowing Nature to effect its own cure. Furthermore, you get no harmful after-effects from 'ASPRO,' as it is speedily eliminated from the system a few hours after being taken. It neither dopes, deadens nor drugs.

What 'ASPRO' Does:

1 It Stops Violent Headaches in 5 to 10 minutes
2 It Brings Sweet Sleep to the Sleepless.
3 It Relieves Rheumatism in one night.
4 It Relieves Children's Growing Pains.
5 It Saves many a Sound Tooth by Removing Toothache.
6 It Brings Relief without causing sickness, indigestion or a craving.
7 It Stops Pain without harming the Heart.
8 It soothes away Irritability.
9 A hot lemon drink with 2 or 3 'ASPRO' Tablets will smash up a Cold or 'Flu attack in one night.
10 It Reduces Temperature in 5 minutes.
11 It can be taken at any time, in Tram, Train, at Home, at Business — anywhere — everywhere.
12 It gives the greatest relief ever known to women at their times of periodical depression.
13 It Stops the Ill After-Effects of Alcohol.
14 It relieves Dengue and Malaria by reducing the fever.
15 As a Gargle, 'ASPRO' is wonderful for Sore Throats, Tonsilitis, etc

'ASPRO' is Woman's Best Friend

Possibly the greatest users of 'ASPRO' are women, for whom 'ASPRO' has a special charm on account of the varied periodical experiences with which all women are familiar. They surely know just what a wonderful soother and pain dispeller 'ASPRO' is. Millions of women throughout the World now regularly take 'ASPRO,' the safe, sure and effective medicine, to relieve their pain and accompanying physical depression, who before had to resort to dangerous drugs, narcotics or opiates. The understanding woman uses 'ASPRO.'

SECOND DIVISION.

Young Indians Lack Understanding.

The Young Indians, making their initial appearance in the League suffered a defeat at the hands of the Club by 5 goals to 2 on the Happy Valley ground.

Chiefly owing to lack of understanding and insufficient practice the Young Indians were unable to combine sufficiently well to penetrate the Club defence and it was mainly through individual efforts that Farrow was tested. A. M. Omar made some spectacular runs to score both their goals.

G. Duncan by use of some quick ball-work gave the Club their first goal, which he followed with a shot to the bottom corner of the net which had Ranzan well beaten. Boyd added a third just before the interval. A. M. Omar scored for the Indians after the interval and Williamson and Duncan added two for the Club, after which Omar again ran through to net the Indians' second.

Club: Farrow; Lowe, Railton; McKellor, Boyd, Gamble; Williams, Bell, Duncan, G. Williamson, Dunhill.

Young Indians: Ranzan; Dean, O. M Omar; Maikar, Hussain, Azim; Yusef. Ram, A. M. Omar, Cassumbhoy, Arculli.

Kowloon Play With Eight Men.

Kowloon were decidedly unfortunate in their match against the Chinese Athletic which they lost by 3 goals to 1.

With the first few minutes Oldfield injured his arm and was immediately rushed to the Government Civil Hospital, and soon afterwards Videro was injured in attempting to save. A further misfortune beset the mainlanders when G. White had to leave the field in the second half, leaving Kowloon with only eight men.

Lui Tai-po netted two goals in the opening half for the Athletic after nice runs, and Duffield reduced the lead just before the interval with a well-placed cross-shot.

Ping Lau-hung scored the only goal of the second half with a poor effort which made the game safe for the Athletic.

Kowloon: Videro; Everest, J Winch; Hopkins, Oldfield, Tillery; G White, Webb, Duffield, C. Winch. P. White.

THE TIGER OF TIBET

Immediately opposite him, on the far side of the court, there sat in state a line of thirteen lamas in the full panoply demanded by a great occasion, dressed with silken robes and their faces hidden by enormous and hideous masks.

With one exception these masks were typical devil-masks, but the centre man, whose robes were richer and more extravagantly embroidered than those of his companions, supported a mask the like of which Geoffrey had never seen before. There could be no doubt as to its meaning, for the black stripes on the yellow back-ground, the immense green eyes and long, blood-flecked teeth, unmistakably represented—and that graphically—the head of a tiger.

There was but one explanation possible. Its wearer was the creature known as the "Tiger of Tibet," the being whom Geoffrey had set out to track down and destroy. And now at last he was face to face with this elusive head of a secret sect, but as a prisoner and completely in their power.

The "Tiger" raised his arm for silence, and the movement betrayed the Tibetan. Geoffrey studied the hands of the other masked officers, and saw that all were those of Tibetans, too; they were altogether too light in colour for Tibetans, and when they moved their fingers, the long nails could be unmistakably seen.

So the gang was under Tibetan control. Geoffrey was not surprised. But where did Hayde Thompson come in? That he was a member, and an influential one at that, there could be no doubt. Why was he not present on so obviously an important occasion?

The "Tiger's" gesture was immediately obeyed and a great hush fell on all those present. Nowhere in the world, except possibly in the North and South Polar regions, does silence hold such sway as in the snow-bound summits of the Himalayas and the upland deserts of Tibet. Geoffrey could not help being awed by his surroundings. Here was a great pit formed in some mysterious manner in the very massif of the mighty mountain of Kailas, a pyramidshaped peak of over twenty-two thousand feet in height which towered up from the surrounding tableland. There are few places in the world which are held as sacred by more human beings than this stupendous mountain, holy as it is both to the teeming masses of Buddhists and the millions of Hindus. And here in the very bowels of the mountain, unknown to the outside world, the rulers of this secret gang laid their plans and issued their orders. No wonder their lair had never been discovered.

"Bring forth the prisoners!"

Geoffrey started at the great voiced which boomed across the stillness, and then he realised that the "Tiger" was speaking through a megaphone. The words were Tibetan, but it was obvious that all present understood their meaning.

There was a scuffling sound, and four men were dragged by armed Tibetan guards into the centre of the arena. Geoffrey saw, to his surprise, that the prisoners also belonged to that nationality. The Tibetan whom he had taken prisoner at the mission-station had declared that the Tibetans were never punished. This was obviously some special case, and the reason of the assembly and the general excitement was explained.

The "Tiger" raised his megaphone to the mouth of the great mask.

MOTORING NOTES.

BRITISH CARS IN SPAIN.

United States Losing Monopoly.

BOOM IN "BABY" MODELS.

Madrid.

Because labour troubles have forced increasing numbers of car-owners to give up their chauffeurs, there is a regular boom here for low-powered English motor-cars.

In one Spanish city the authorities have legislated that owners must pay their chauffeurs 15 pesetas a day extra whenever they take the car beyond the municipal boundaries.

Young women, dressed in clothes to tone with the coachwork of British cars, are now learning to drive in large numbers.

The result is that high-powered and expensive cars are giving way to the "baby" variety and English firms have obtained a strong foothold on a market hitherto practically monopolised by the United States.—Reuter.

Why we use Transverse Springs in Ford Cars

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

A man writes us a letter making courteous inquiry on the subject of the Ford spring He relates a recent experience in which a salesman felt he could not sell his own make of car without first depreciating the Ford car in this customer's mind. The main attack was made on the Ford spring. I take pleasure in explaining this point.

We use transverse springs in Ford cars for the same reason that we use round wheels—because we have found nothing better for the purpose.

Most people think that the only purpose of a spring is comfortable riding. But springs, and even very flexible springs can cause discomfort as well as danger. A good spring must not only be comfortable—it must be safe. It must also assist operation economy. The spring we use serves all three purposes.

A transverse spring—which simply means a spring set crosswise—gives comfort. It is like the wings of a bird—the tips move most, while the body remains steady. I cannot prove that in a letter, but you can prove it in a Ford V-8. Any dealer will gladly allow you the opportunity.

The safety reasons for the transverse spring may be simply stated. In rounding a curve or turning a corner, one side of the car naturally lists downward. Transverse springs do not lift up the opposite side. They actually decrease the car's lean-over. Each spring is set in line with the axle and is attached at its center to the frame. This tends to prevent that swaying on a curve which is so uncomfortable and often dangerous. Notice for yourself how greatly these springs control this in our car.

Transverse springs also make steering and braking exceedingly safe. The Ford car is not driven through its springs. Hence the axles do not see-saw back and forth and so cannot interfere with normal steering and braking action

Now, about economy. Unsprung weight is that part of the car weight that does not rest on springs. For tire economy it must be low in proportion to sprung weight. It must be low to prevent excess jarring of the frame and body In the Ford car it is low, due to the use of transverse springs.

We choose to retain the transverse spring for the above good reasons. From every point of view it justifies our choice. If there had been anything better for our car, we would have used it.

We make these springs ourselves—every leaf in every spring—set them up and install them. We know what they are and we know why we use them.
